

FAQs

What's the difference between the square carbon blade and the replacement carbon blade?

The four-sided square blade is used to tackle heavy-duty carbon buildup and should be used in conjunction with the original carbon removal hook. Use the square blade to puncture the carbon and the original blade to finish the extraction. The amount of carbon in your engine will depend on the vehicle's mileage and the duration of the problem.